5 THE COURT: Good morning. Please be seated.

6 MS. WOOD: Good morning, Your Honor.

7 THE COURT: All right. We are back on cause number 8 4:20-cv-957, State of Texas, et al versus Google, LLC. And 9 we can start with appearances. And let's go ahead and begin 10 with plaintiffs.

11 MR. LANIER: Thank you, Your Honor. And with 12 appreciation, for having been gone the last hearing, I was in 13 trial with one of your federal judiciary people in Helena, 14 Montana, and I would have much rather been here.

15 I've got with me this morning Zeke DeRose from my 16 office. From the Attorney General's office we have Trevor 17 Young and we have James Lloyd. But we also have present
18 today Attorney General Ken Paxton. From Norton Rose
19 Fulbright, we have Jim Renard. And then the DOJ is a 20 separate entity, so I will let Ms. Wood...

21 MS. WOOD: Good morning, Your Honor. Julia Wood 22 from the Department of Justice, here on behalf of the United 23 States and the state plaintiffs in the EDVA action.

24 Thank you very much, Your Honor.

25 THE COURT: All right. Thank you, ma'am.

1 And welcome to the Attorney General.

2 And, Google, you're outnumbered again. Go ahead.

3 MR. AYCOCK: Good morning, Your Honor. Jamie
4 Aycock with Yetter Coleman, on behalf of Google.

5 And Mr. Yetter sends his regrets for not being able 6 to be here. He's in pretrial --

7 THE COURT: All right. Well, thank you, counsel.

8 And we have just one item on the agenda today. We 9 have a submission from the parties that is a Joint Motion For 10 an Order For Reproduction of Discovery. And we have the 11 United States that weighed in on this.

12 And so I think perhaps a useful starting point may 13 be for counsel to get me up to date on where we are with 14 regard to this particular motion. I did see the United 15 States' submission on Friday regarding the objections that 16 were made in the EDVA to the magistrate judge's decision, and 17 I believe that's been set for hearing.

18 But I'm happy to have comments from counsel on 19 where we are. Mr. Lanier, you can begin.

20 MR. LANIER: Thank you. Thank you, Your Honor.

21 And it's a pleasure to be back in front of you. We 22 appreciate the time and attention not only you, but Special 23 Master David Moran and his able cohorts have worked very hard 24 to get us here. The parties have taken an extreme number of 25 depositions in an extremely short time, as many as six and

1 seven in a day. And so it has been a lot of hard work by 2 both parties.

3 One of the concerns that prompted this from us, if 4 I could reduce this to a single sentence, it's that there is 5 a concern that we have an unfair playing field. And by that 6 I mean, this is a three-front war that is being waged, and 7 Google has the same lawyers in all three fronts. Google 8 knows what's happening in the MDL, and they're up on all that 9 discovery and the experts. Google knows what's happening in 10 the Eastern District of Virginia; they are totally up on all 11 that. Google knows what's happening in our case.

12 Our concern is we would like to make sure that we 13 get the expert reports that have been ordered by Special 14 Master Moran. We think we're entitled to those. We put 15 those arguments in front of you. You don't need me to 16 reiterate anything that you already know. You come in with 17 your homework done.

18 But I will say this. To the extent we can get 19 those, and we should get those, the reciprocity issue, going 20 back to the Eastern District of Virginia, is important, even 21 to us, because while that judge in the Eastern District of 22 Virginia regulates the docket over there, you regulate this 23 docket. You're not bound by a magistrate in Virginia.
24 You're not bound by a magistrate in Texas. You're not bound 25 by anybody. You run your court as the Article III Judge you

1 are.

2 And to the extent we believe we're hearing 3 inconsistent answers about documents and about positions in 4 the depositions we're taking, that have also been taken in 5 the Eastern District of Virginia, it's quite difficult for us
6 to be unable to flesh out those differences for impeachment 7 purposes because of limitations on sharing. And so what we 8 would like to do -- there are no limitations on sharing 9 within Google when they all have the same counsel. We just 10 want a level playing field. And that's our status.

11 THE COURT: All right. Thank you, Mr. Lanier.

12 So Mr. Aycock, do you want to speak on Google's 13 behalf of where we are?

14 MR. AYCOCK: Yes, Your Honor. So I just remind the 15 Court this is a joint motion. The parties actually agree 16 here that the documents that we're seeking reproduction of, 17 they are relevant to this lawsuit. And so I agree with 18 Mr. Lanier, his comments, about the Virginia court regulating 19 its docket.

20 What's before this Court is whether the documents 21 that we're seeking reproduction of are -- should be within 22 the scope of discovery in this case. And so I just emphasize 23 that it's this Court that determines the scope of discovery 24 in this case, and it's the Virginia court that determines the 25 scope of discovery in its case.

1 This issue that's been raised about Google somehow
2 taking inconsistent positions, we don't think that's the case 3 in any way, and, in fact, that issue was raised before the 4 magistrate; that is before the Virginia court. I'm happy to 5 get into those, the details of that if that's where we need 6 to go. But what I would just emphasize is what's before the 7 Court today is simply whether these materials should be 8 produced in this case.

9 And so what should be before the Court, then, is, 10 is there -- if we produce those documents, is that going to 11 violate the protective order in the Virginia case, or is that 12 going to create an issue for the third parties whose 13 confidential information is at issue. And we think it's 14 clear there is no violation of the Virginia protective order.
15 In fact, the protective order contemplates that those 16 documents would be produced in other matters.

17 And then in terms of any concerns about third 18 parties' confidential information, those would be addressed 19 first, but the vast majority of third parties have actually 20 already consented. We are at the point where we have 115 21 consents. Only eleven parties have not fully consented at 22 this point; one of those is Meta that has agreed to a 23 narrowing; and one of those is Zulily, which is bankrupt, and 24 so it's just difficult to get consent. But the vast majority 25 have actually already agreed. And there is a process in the

1 proposed order by which any party that has a concern can 2 raise an objection.

3 So we think that's all that's before this Court,
4 and we think you should grant the motion.

5 THE COURT: All right. Thank you, counsel.

6 Is there something you wanted to say, Ms. Woods?

7 MS. WOOD: Yes, Your Honor. I will be brief. I 8 promise.

9 First, we thank the Court very much for the 10 opportunity to be heard on this issue. I want to make our 11 position on behalf of the United States and the State
12 Plaintiffs in the EDVA action very clear. We have no 13 opposition to coordination of documents and discovery between 14 this case and the EDVA action. What we do oppose, however, 15 is one-sided gamesmanship where one party is seeking to take 16 the benefits of that coordinated discovery without providing 17 the reciprocal benefit to the other side. That's what we 18 oppose. So how does that leave Your Honor?

19 I understand you're on a very tight timetable here, 20 as we are in the Eastern District of Virginia, and we don't 21 want to slow that down. We don't want to impede things. Our 22 number one goal in filing the material we filed with you was, 23 first, to make the Court aware of what was happening because 24 I do think we're in a situation where there's been the 25 ability to present different positions to different courts

1 and leave different impressions about what's going on, and we 2 wanted to stop that by making all courts aware what was 3 happening in each of the relevant jurisdictions.

4 But we don't have an objection to providing all 5 discovery -- not even just third-party discovery -- all 6 discovery from the EDVA action. We would not oppose it being 7 reproduced here, provided that this Court, which has 8 jurisdiction of its own protective order, carves out a 9 provision in that protective order to provide the ability of 10 the plaintiffs in the EDVA action to obtain deposition 11 transcripts. That would leave for the Court of Virginia to 12 decide how and whether those deposition transcripts could be 13 used at trial.

14 But it is this Court's protective order that 15 prevents us from obtaining the deposition transcripts in the 16 first place. And if we obtain them, and the Court in the 17 Eastern District of Virginia does not allow us to use them 18 for impeachment purposes, then we will be on a level playing 19 field with Google.

20 However, where we are now is they definitely get 21 the transcripts. It's unclear how or whether they'll use 22 them. And we believe this Court has within its sole 23 jurisdiction a construction of its own protective order to at 24 the very least allow the plaintiffs in the EDVA action, 25 including the United States, to obtain those deposition

1 transcripts that are occurring here. That is a restriction 2 that's contained in the protective order in this action, and 3 Your Honor has the power and the authority to modify that.

4 THE COURT: All right. Thank you, Ms. Wood.

5 MS. WOOD: Thank you.

6 THE COURT: Let me visit with you all about what 7 about this order I find I guess a little bit puzzling. I 8 only say "puzzling" because I am wondering about the scope of 9 the order and its provisions, and I think you all will admit 10 it's an order that looks somewhat unusual in how it's 11 structured; and those go hand in hand.

12 And when I read the order and look at what's being 13 requested, my thoughts go back to first principles of 14 discovery for this case, for any case. So I think we work 15 backward from the fact that under Rule 26, for example, any 16 items that -- I use this by way of example -- that Google 17 wants to use and Google may want to put into evidence at 18 trial or before trial, those should be items that would be 19 part of their initial disclosures. Plainly, under Rule 26, 20 that is contemplated.

21 So to the extent that Google wants to use materials
22 that are gathered in the EDVA action or otherwise, and it 23 wants to use them as evidence in this case, then those are 24 part of initial disclosures which, you know, the parties have 25 an obligation to supplement.

1 Second, as to the States, if the States have made 2 requests for the production of materials that have been 3 produced in other litigation that are relevant under Rule 26, 4 then I would need to know the reason why those should not be 5 produced. And speaking to first principle, I would note as a 6 threshold matter that allowing the sharing of discovery among 7 related cases is an efficient and an effective means of 8 avoiding duplicative and costly discovery and avoiding 9 unnecessary delay in adjudicating cases.

10 There's many, many cases that stand for this 11 proposition. It's a proposition that's also in Wright &
12 Miller. I'm going to quote you from Wright & Miller. Wright 13 & Miller says one key consideration having to do with 14 potential modification of the protective order is that, 15 "Ordinarily, the most forceful case can be made for access to 16 use material as evidence in other litigation so that later 17 litigants do not have to," quote, unquote, "'reinvent the 18 wheel.'" This conclusion flows from the key purpose of 19 discovery -- to develop information for use in litigation.
20 It builds on a long line of cases recognizing the propriety 21 of access to the fruits of one litigation to facilitate the 22 preparation of other cases."

23 There are many cases that stand for this 24 proposition in Texas, and across the country candidly.

25 So I look at this request, which is very

1 specifically worded, and I think why aren't are the parties
2 simply asking for something that I think is more in line with 3 first principles under the rules, that is to say, if you need 4 such an order. And that would be such an order that would 5 require that documents from related litigation that are 6 otherwise relevant and non-privileged should be produced 7 according to Rule 26 with regard to initial disclosures, with 8 regard to any other rules of discovery such as requests for 9 production and interrogatories that are properly made.

10 Second, that if you're asking for that order and 11 the Court is ordering that that happen, that that be subject 12 to the provisions of protective orders in otherwise related 13 litigation, if there are protective orders in those other 14 jurisdictions that must be complied with, then that's 15 recognized. And that is something that's contained in, by 16 the way, the proposed order, and that makes sense to me.

17 We need to abide by the protective orders entered 18 in that related litigation as well as the protective order in 19 this litigation. And I note that we have a very robust 20 confidentiality order, we have a robust document on discovery
21 procedures, in this case, which I think touches on this 22 issue. I don't know if you all went back and read it, but it 23 does touch on this issue. We have a specific protocol for 24 expert discovery.

25 So my view of this for the parties is that I would

1 prefer to see you come back to this Court, and come back as 2 quick as you would like, but with an order that -- a proposed 3 order, if you feel you need it, that applies what I consider 4 to be basic principles of discovery under Rule 26, under case
5 law interpreting Rule 26 for decades. And if there's a 6 reason why -- if there's a reason why, or authority, that 7 would counsel otherwise that there is something about this 8 litigation, there is something about this case or other cases 9 that counsels that the Court should not follow those 10 principles of discovery, I'm happy to hear about it. I 11 haven't seen it in the filings that have been made.

12 And I appreciate the United States' position about 13 difficulties, from their perspective, of an unfairness 14 regarding the distribution of discovery materials across 15 these litigations. But as you all have agreed upon today, my 16 responsibility in this court, in this case, is to apply the 17 federal rules of discovery, and that is what I'm going to do.

18 So I'm happy to hear from any of you if you have a 19 concern about what I have suggested to you or if you 20 otherwise think there are reasons that the principles I've 21 articulated may not apply exactly in this case. But what I'm 22 suggesting to you is that you make an amended filing and that 23 that amended filing follow the rule, follow the precedent 24 that's interpreted the rule.

25 And the last point I would make is that I agree

1 with what counsel has said about the protective order at 2 issue in the EDVA and the coordination order there. The 3 protective order there, in the first place, only has to do
4 with confidential and highly confidential information; it
5 says nothing about other information that's otherwise 6 relevant and collected. That's number one.

7 Number two, what that order says, in paragraphs 25
8 through 27, about confidential and highly confidential
9 information is, as counsel have noted, that when there is a 10 court order or a subpoena that calls for information that is 11 protected under that order as confidential or highly 12 confidential, then the processes contemplated by that order 13 should be implemented.

14 I think those processes, again, are addressed in 15 the protocol I have in front of me. But I want to be clear 16 that the Eastern District's order is something that the 17 parties appear to have paid close attention to, and I think 18 any order from this Court would play close attention to. But 19 I'm not going to over read that order, and I don't read that 20 order to apply, in the first instance, to nonconfidential or 21 highly confidential information, nor do I read it as some 22 blanket restriction on the use of such materials in other 23 litigation. Rather, it is meant to provide a protection for 24 nonparties should they be concerned about the use of material 25 collected from them in a related action or it can be used in

1 this action.

2 Likewise, I don't see anything in the coordination 3 order, which, by the way, was put into place at the time that 4 this case was part of the MDL, is no longer part of the 5 MDL -- as you all are very well aware, we are under no
6 coordination order at this time. There is no coordination 7 order between this litigation and any of the other cases 8 regarding these issues. So that brings me back to the 9 principle I stated before. My job is to apply the federal 10 rules, and that's what we're going to do.

11 Any comments you want to make on that, Mr. Lanier?

12 MR. LANIER: Yes, please. A, understood. B, we 13 will file an amended order, either agreed to or separately.
14 C, we know that today is the deadline under the rules for 15 Google to object to the special master's order granting 16 production of the expert reports from the Eastern District of 17 Virginia. It's still unclear to us whether or not there will 18 be an objection.

19 And, obviously, because of our time situation, with 20 you having espoused the rules that you have and gone back to 21 basic principles, we will be pressing that matter forward, 22 depending upon whether or not Google is going to make that 23 objection today. And our hope is is that we will, pursuant 24 to what you've just said, wind up getting, and getting 25 expeditiously, those things that we have a right to.

1 So thank you. And we will file an amended order.

2 THE COURT: All right. Mr. Aycock?

3 MR. AYCOCK: Your Honor, I am not prepared to 4 address whether we are objecting to the exhibit reports -- 5 the expert reports, but I believe that we are not filing an 6 objection. I just want to make sure that I understand the 7 guidance from the Court, though --

8 THE COURT: Sure.

9 MR. AYCOCK: -- the proposed order, as we talked 10 with the plaintiffs. So my understanding is that Your Honor 11 is emphasizing the fact that we don't include in the proposed 12 order that agreement that the materials that we're seeking 13 reproduction of are relevant and not otherwise privileged.

14 Is that really the critical issue that Your Honor 15 is pointing us to?

16 THE COURT: Well, what I'm pointing you to is that 17 I think that whatever you propose should track what the rules 18 require and what the rules have interpreted they require.
19 And I spared you all some quotes from a number of different 20 cases that basically say that, you know, the sharing of 21 discovery among related cases is well-recognized and makes 22 good sense.

23 So again, my thought on this is if there is a 24 reason to treat this case or these different litigations in 25 another way, I haven't seen it articulated, and I would

1 consider it if you wanted to bring it forward to me. But 2 what I'm saying, to answer your question precisely, is I 3 think what you're submitting is something that tracks the 4 rules rather than being focused on, you know, X particular 5 document or group of documents; right?

6 What we're talking about is discovery, however it's 7 been collected, whatever it looks like, that is in related 8 litigation, if it would fall under Rule 26, if it would not 9 otherwise be problematic. For example, there are cases where 10 something would not have been discoverable in related 11 litigation or something like that, or where there's a thought 12 where you need to modify the protective order in a related 13 litigation for some reason, that's indeed the section of 14 Wright & Miller that I was looking at, is where you're 15 requesting a modification of a protective order in another 16 district, right, in related litigation.

17 And what Wright & Miller is talking about is a very 18 good reason to do that, to modify that protective order, is 19 so that you can fulfill this principle of litigation, which 20 goes back to rule one; right? This goes back to rule one, 21 that we try to move forward litigation as efficiently as we 22 can and not to do duplicative discovery, not to have 23 plaintiffs across different jurisdictions reinventing the 24 wheel.

25 So what I'm suggesting is you put it in those broad

1 terms subject to, for example, the provisions of the 2 protective order, which you have in there. I mean, those 3 provisions I think, you know, generally look fine. And now
4 the government has something -- the United States Government
5 has something it would like to see added. And I will leave 6 it to the parties to visit about that and present it to me if 7 that's what you want to do, or if you -- or if the parties 8 don't agree. The United States is here because it wanted to 9 give its expression of interest. So I'll leave it to you all 10 what you're willing to agree to and if the United States, you 11 know, wants to submit something in that regard.

12 But for my purposes, what I think should be 13 submitted is this type of order that tracks the rules. And, 14 look, I understand that it will be somewhat unusual because 15 you're essentially asking the Court for an order that says 16 follow the rules; right? That's what you're doing. That's 17 what I -- I understand that, but I am willing to look at an 18 order that says follow the rules and the interpretive case 19 law. And, you know, again, if there's case law going the 20 other way, I'm happy to look at it if somebody wants to 21 present it, I haven't seen it.

22 And so again I'd say we're going to follow the 23 federal rules, that's what I expect the order to present and 24 the Court to confirm by order. And I understand the purpose 25 here, right, because that is where you're tracking back to

1 the protective order in the EDVA and you're asking for an 2 order that says this is how we're going to proceed, and 3 that's why I'm willing to consider this order and because I 4 think it is then helpful for this Court and it's helpful for 5 other courts.

6 But, look, as you mentioned at the beginning of 7 this hearing, we're winding down the clock in this case. The 8 fact discovery period has ended. The Court has allowed some 9 additional specific discrete items of discovery to occur past 10 that deadline. We're into the expert phase.

11 I'm well aware that in the EDVA, discovery closed a 12 while ago. That case is getting ready for trial in 13 September. And, to my understanding, the MDL discovery 14 period is winding down. I think it's meant to end in June.

15 So I think, you know, in all of these litigations, 16 you know, I think we're at a point where, you know, the 17 collection and distribution of information that's needed by 18 the parties is something that everyone ought to be focused 19 on. And so that's the reason I'm telling you I'd like to see 20 this amended proposal rather than the current one.

21 MR. AYCOCK: Thank you, Your Honor.

22 THE COURT: Does that make sense?

23 MS. WOOD: Your Honor, just briefly?

24 THE COURT: Yes. Go ahead.

25 MS. WOOD: So thank you for that. I understand

1 Your Honor's instruction. And I just wanted to clarify the 2 role of the United States in that regard because I think we 3 do want to be a part of those discussions, again to ensure 4 that the spirit of the coordination that has always applied, 5 including when this case was part of the MDL, which is that 6 there would be a give and a take, and that both of those take 7 place to provide an efficient finding of truth across all 8 three cases. I think that is absolutely consistent with the 9 rules and the cases that Your Honor has referred to. And so
10 I do look forward to the opportunity to negotiate an order 11 that the United States feels serves its interests as well.

12 Thank you very much, Your Honor.

13 THE COURT: All right.

14 The last thing I want to note to the parties is 15 that we've, you know, made limited exceptions on discovery 16 that had to do with certain depositions that I think just 17 could not be taken prior to the deadline, including 18 depositions that are still under dispute, by the way. And so 19 to the extent that this process, in putting this protocol in 20 place or this order in place and what comes from it, has any 21 kind of ripple effect on being able to complete other 22 discovery, you can let me know that.

23 Is there anything else we need to discuss today,
24 Mr. Lanier?

25 MR. LANIER: Not from plaintiffs, Your Honor.

1 Thank you.

2 THE COURT: Mr. Aycock, anything from Google?

3 MR. AYCOCK: Nothing else from Google. Thank you,
4 Your Honor.

5 THE COURT: All right. So my hope is you will get 6 that amended proposal to the Court sooner rather than later.

7 MR. LANIER: Your Honor, if we can't get it to you 8 today, it will be to you by 10:00 tomorrow morning.

9 THE COURT: All right. Thank you, counsel.
10 We'll stand in recess.

4 I, Gayle Wear, Federal Official Court Reporter, in 5 and for the United States District Court for the Eastern
